Enjoy a day trip to the Chapel in the Pines

The first settlers to this area came in the early 1900s to live and work the land. Their artisan well still provides water to guests and woodland animals. It was said to be a hard life with rocky land and cold winters. Many of the original settlers are buried here.

Today guests can drive, ATV, or snowmobile into the church nestled deep in the woods. Its history is well kept, as is the site. It's open for picnics and weddings. Various churches host Sunday services in the chapel. The pines that tower over the church wrap around it like it is being protected by nature. Walking trails lead into the woods, where visitors like to bird hunt, forage for mushrooms, or take in the golden hours of sunscapes.
